

In the 21st century, We are encouraged to consume: to buy, to sell, to own.

To own something it must be both
definable and separate from oneself.

How does this ideology affect our ability to accept some basic facts...

We are not separate from the world around us.

Our actions impact on everything including ourselves.

Everything is in a constant state of flux.