

When you think of your mind, do you imagine a central controller directing you through the world?